

Ecliptek Expands Automated Data Download Program, Delivers Information Directly to Supplyframe

Over 3,000,000 oscillator and crystal part numbers easily accessible to Supplyframe's global user network

November 11, 2015

Pasadena and Costa Mesa, CA – Supplyframe, a world leader in electronic component research platforms, now references detailed information on over 3,000,000 frequency control product part numbers received directly from Ecliptek Corporation. Ecliptek's automated Data Download electronically delivers accurate part numbers, parametric and regulatory data and product descriptions directly to Supplyframe's over 6,000,000 users worldwide.

"Ecliptek is a leading manufacturer in Frequency Control Products and having them tied directly into the SupplyFrame content network is extremely valuable to our audience. We're excited to be able to present their product information updates firsthand to the 6M professionals using SupplyFrame." said Andy Brown, VP of Content Services at SupplyFrame.

Ecliptek's automated data transfer program eliminates the need for manual entry or mining of data by delivering the most accurate, comprehensive information available. Through its download program, Ecliptek has aligned itself with leading information and documentation collection companies that serve the electronic component industry, including its strategic Authorized Distributors.

"Supplyframe is an excellent addition to our automated Data Download program" acknowledged Robert Zarrow, Ecliptek Vice President of Global Customer Support, "Their multiple platforms serving the length and breadth of the global supply chain offer Ecliptek new abilities to reach a much broader customer base."

The two companies have worked closely to seamlessly integrate Ecliptek's millions of unique part numbers delivered by the Data Download across the multitude of applicable component platforms under the Supplyframe umbrella. In addition to supplyframe.com, the company's engineering network includes parts.io, findchips, supplyfx and datasheet.net.
